

Our Roman club mid-2nd and 3rd centuries helmets.

After long and difficult years in our club we already have it for use enough helmets to participate with a large number of reenactors participants on festival events:

Brass Buch Rheinau helmet

Bronze and iron models Niederbieber Archäologisches Museum Frankfurt.

Theilenhofen helmet -German National Museum (Nuremberg / Germany). Ancient Roman iron infantry helmet with foil mountings, 2nd century AD, from Theilenhofen (Bavaria).

Imperial Italic H- Axel Guttman collection iron

Xanten/Germany, displayed today in the Bonn museum. brass

Brass Buch Rheinau helmet -World Heritage roman border defense, Limes, helmet of roman soldier in Limes Museum in Aalen, Ostalb province, Baden-Wuerttemberg, Germany.

Xanten/Germany, displayed today in the Bonn museum. brass

Imperial Italic H- Axel Guttman collection iron

Theilenhofen helmet -German National Museum (Nuremberg / Germany). Ancient Roman iron infantry helmet with foil mountings, 2nd century AD, from Theilenhofen (Bavaria).

All of our 3rd century helmets will not be unbuttoned during the action. After several experiments, the cheek guards have a window and tube fastening model. Cheek protectors are made similar to those of Musée archéologique de Strasbourg, Niederbieber Helmet (private collection).

Bronze and iron models Niederbieber Archäologisches Museum Frankfurt.

I have used my rich virtual collection on the subject to choose the most correct way of fastening. I used nothing but brass sheet and tin for mounting.

All this in action:

<http://legio-iii-scythica.com/index.php/en/roman-historical-restorations/roman-events/abritvs-24-june-2011/abritvs-2021.html>

Imperial Italic H- Axel Guttman collection iron

Helmet from the former Axel Guttman collection. The helmet with the two mice, made of iron with brass fittings, this is the known version of the Niedermörmter helmet types.

These helmets are the last ones belonging to the long imperial Gallic or italic tradition.

