

Our model of Constantine I late Roman shields

These our 2 new late Roman club shields are a pioneering product for the late roman reenactment. This is a creative re-creation of the late Roman coins Avers! This is a project of living numismatics with us. Shields are hand-painted.

I was inspired by this during my research on numasatics on the subject. This is a creative re-creation of the late Roman coins Avers of Constantine I (307-337God).

God Sol in the quadriga are depicted on the shield.

Constantine I (307-337). Gold Medallion Ticinum. INVICTVS CONSTANTINVS MA – X AVG.

 This is another inspiration of mine! A creative re-creation over the Avers of silver Medallion of Constantine I (307-337)! On the imperial shield is depicted the capitol she-wolf together with Romulus and Remus. I was inspired by this image during my research on numasatics on the subject.

Constantine I, 307 – 337. Medallion, Ticinum 315, AR 6.08 g. IMP CONSTANT – INVS P F AVG
 Cuirassed bust three-quarters facing, wearing high-crested helmet, holding horse by bridle with r. hand and reversed spear in l. Rev. SALVS REI – PVBLIC – AE Constantine I, draped, cuirassed, standing l. on platform, holding trophy across l. shoulder, crowned by Victory; before him, four soldiers with horses and three soldiers with shields; behind him, two soldiers, standing on either side of dais, each holding standard. C 484. RIC 36 (this obverse die). Alföldi pl. 4, 61 (this obverse die).

This incredible medallion was struck for distribution as a military donative as part of the celebrations commemorating Constantine's decennalia (10-year anniversary of his reign) in A.D. 315. It features what is arguably one of the most iconic, dramatic, and rare numismatic portraits of Constantine I
